

Product Availability Differs depending on the location of the pet owner. Where possible the Dropship API should be called as the product is added to the cart, to confirm availability based on the customers location (geolocation or ask them).
 At the time the order is finalised the delivery address is confirmed and at that point the API should be called again to check availability and ETA for all products. These lead times should be shown to the client as appropriate.

The Australia Post API provides approximate freight cost estimates

The order will be strictly validated and orders that contain unavailable products, delivery dates we can not meet or any other issue will be rejected. There is provision to link the order to specific clients/patients/orders in your system. These details will be returned when the order is shipped
